

NEW JERSEY AND STATEN ISLAND

NO REPUBLICAN PLAN YET FORMED.

Can't Decide Whether to Hold or Vacate Jersey City Offices.

FAR REACHING QUESTION. If Election Extension Law Is Unconstitutional Will Other Laws Fall With It?

ERIE RAILROAD INTERESTED.

If Legislation for Cities of the First Class Is Invalid, It Can Evade Its $1,000,000 Jersey City Improvement.

It is not settled whether the Jersey City Republicans will refuse to surrender their offices to the Democrats elected last Tuesday. The question is still under their consideration and is the subject of many conferences. Corbin & Corbin, lawyers, have advised the Republicans that the decision of the Supreme Court in Garrison and Guinn did not settle the question as to who is entitled to the offices, but merely ordered an election on April 13; that, by refusing to surrender office, they will put the case in shape for a test before the Court of Appeals that will almost surely secure a final decision that the abolishing the Spring elections in Jersey City and Newark was valid and that the constitutionality of the law should be passed upon to determine the validity of other laws which are restricted to Jersey City and Newark.

The law abolishing the Spring elections was introduced by Assemblyman McArthur. It extended the terms of incumbents until January 1, 1898. It was declared unconstitutional because it was made operative only in Jersey City and Newark, which is designated as cities of the first class. Cities of the first class in New Jersey are those with a population of 100,000.

Laws effective only in the two cities of the first class have been passed by every Legislature in the last ten years. Lawyers say many of them will be invalidated by the decision against the McArthur law. If the McArthur law is unconstitutional, all laws that were restricted to Jersey City and Newark because of excess of population. One of the most important of these is the law providing for the elevation of the Erie Railroad tracks in Jersey City. The passing of this law was the cause of much rejoicing, and the victory of a long fight. The decision against the Erie Railroad Company an opportunity to avoid making the improvement, which will cost the company at least $1,000,000. A law of 1895 allows cities of the first class to bond themselves to raise funds for a water supply, but the Democrats claim that the law is unconstitutional, because the acts of a de facto official are always legal.

Mayor Wanser is non-committal. It is reported that he favors an early submission of the issue to the Court of Errors. Possibly this may be brought about by the refusal of the Finance Board, which is Republican, to approve of the bonds of Hawk and Nolan, who were elected Street and Water Commissioners by the Democrats last Tuesday. Their terms should begin April 23.

United States Commissioner Isaac Romaldo, a Republican, said yesterday: "If there exists any doubt about the effect of this decision on our bonds and other important acts of our municipal government, then it will be well to get a final decision. If it is a question of politics only the incumbents should surrender. The refusal of Mayor Wanser and the city police to vacate would be a bad move politically. It would ignore the decision of the Court and of the people at the polls."

The remedy of the Democrats hinted at by Allan L. McArthur in case the Republicans should hold on to the offices is to elect a majority of the Grand Jurors as Democrats. Indictment, it is said, can be for usurpation.

Corbin & Corbin have been requested by Republican leaders to prepare an opinion for a submission on the merits of the case.

CLARKS DEFY THE POLICE.

Stclair and Bloomfield Sleuths Outwitted by the Thieves Nightly. The Montclair (N. J.) police are puzzled over the depredations of burglars who since last Saturday have nightly entered and robbed stores. On Wednesday night the thieves broke into Fentzfall & Wolfe's hardware store on Bloomfield avenue and took $5 from the till. The night before they had entered the same store and stolen $4.

Other places robbed were: Philip Dornmay's grocery store, Hugh Gallagher's feed store and Baldwin's drug store. The thieves have taken money only, and it is believed that they are young men or boys. The storekeepers are talking of organizing a Protective Association an employing detectives to run the thieves down.

In Bloomfield, on Wednesday night, two new homes belonging to James H. Moore on Bloomfield avenue, were broken into and all the lead pipe and gas fixtures, of a total value of $250 were gathered together for removal, but were not taken away. Mr. Moore has engaged detectives to hunt the burglars down.

W. C. T. U. FIGHTS HALL TAXES.

Tuckahoe Union Claims It is a Charitable Institution. Cape May, N. J., April 15.—The State Board of Taxation met here today to consider the demand of the W. C. T. U. of Tuckahoe for the remission of all taxes upon its hall on the ground that it is a charitable institution. The Board had cut down the valuation of the union's property, but had found no law to put it on the exempt list.

The case was defended by the township officials, who proved that the hall was used for other than charitable purposes and submitted evidence to show the assessment was not excessive. Decision was reserved. Friends of the temperance women claim the granting of the township collector was influenced by the union's defeat in the election of a liquor license to the Star Hotel, of Tuckahoe. Connected with this license was the hanging in effigy of the retiring pastor of the First Methodist Church of Tuckahoe, Rev. S. H. Hann, who advocated the women's work and incurred the antagonism of those favoring license.

BOTH CLAIM VICTORY.

Official Canvass Necessary to Decide the Herr-Burkhardt Election Contest in Newark.

It will take the official canvass of the County Board of Elections to decide whether Charles F. Herr, Democrat, or John J. Burkhardt, Republican, was elected to the Newark Board of Works at the charter election, Tuesday. The canvass will take place to-day. Meanwhile each party is claiming a victory, the Republicans relying on the figures of Election Clerk Louis Lippman, which were published in the Journal yesterday, and the Democrats abiding by the returns furnished to the County Committee on election night. "Our returns are the same as official," said Chairman Price, of the Democratic County Committee, yesterday, "for they were made out by our election officers. From the returns we figure a plurality of 211 for Herr, not including the annexed section. Deducting the 92 plurality for Burkhardt in that section, we make Herr's plurality 119."

The Democratic election officers are intelligent and reputable men, and they say the returns they signed contain the same figures as the official returns which the full Board signed. We intend to compare our returns with those in the hands of the County Board of Elections. The Democrats say the canvass may develop errors in the computing of the returns was shown yesterday when, in an examination of the tally sheets, errors were found that gave Edward Maher, Democrat, a net gain of forty-nine votes over Van Duzee, Republican. This would not alter the result in this instance, as Van Duzee received a majority of 1,025, but a similar mistake in the computation of the Herr-Burkhardt votes might upset all present calculations.

BREAKS NEIGHBORS' REST.

Pattern-Maker Scott Is Rather Proud of the Noise He Makes When Other People are Sleeping.

Being handy with tools and an early riser, Charles C. Scott, of No. 65 Monmouth street, Newark, got out at 5:30 o'clock Tuesday morning to make some repairs to his porch. He hammered away for two hours, and then went to his pattern-making establishment. When he returned that evening his wife handed him the following letter:

Tuesday morning, two hours before breakfast. See here, Mr. Scott—Do you know you are making yourself a public nuisance by your hammering and sawing every day? I have been awakened from a sound sleep by your pestiferous hammering, and I am sure you are not going to enjoy but cannot for your racket. This is not the first time I have been inclined to call you a Quaker and all of Monday morning I was up for your racket. We all don't get up at 5 o'clock, and you are not to be up at 5 o'clock after sunrise has been the time called for your racket on Monday. We all don't get up at 5 o'clock, and you are not to be up at 5 o'clock after sunrise has been the time called for your racket on Monday. We all don't get up at 5 o'clock, and you are not to be up at 5 o'clock after sunrise has been the time called for your racket on Monday.

Mr. Scott gasped, then rushed down town to get a copy of the Newark Evening Advertiser, in a local newspaper.

Sleepy One—If you had been enough of a man and a gentleman to sign name to communication which you sent me, I would not have been so much annoyed by your racket. I know I can speak for the south of Science, the Quaker and all of Monday morning I was up for your racket. We all don't get up at 5 o'clock, and you are not to be up at 5 o'clock after sunrise has been the time called for your racket on Monday. We all don't get up at 5 o'clock, and you are not to be up at 5 o'clock after sunrise has been the time called for your racket on Monday.

SHOT HIMSELF ON THE BRIDGE.

Suicide Then Sank in the Hackensack Before Anyone Could Reach Him.

A well-dressed man, apparently about thirty-five years of age, evidently a German, walked down the Newark (N. J.) plank road in the direction of New York, yesterday afternoon, and when he reached the bridge over the Hackensack River climbed over the railing, stood on the outer edge for a moment, drew a revolver from his pocket, shot himself in the head and fell into the river.

Fishermen there said they saw the man climb over the railing, and tried to get to him before he shot himself, but failed. Before he climbed over the rail they saw him drop a newspaper on the bridge, which proved to be a copy of a New York morning German newspaper, dated April 1. Nothing was found that might lead to the identity of the suicide.

MUSIC TEACHER VANISHED.

Class He Formed Had Paid Him in Advance, and Others Also Suffered.

Professor W. W. Smith, middle-aged, well-dressed and suave, visited Lambertville, N. J., recently and announced that he would form a class to teach music. He explained that formerly he was connected with a big choir and received a fine salary, but owing to his voice failing he had to give up singing, and decided to teach music in order to make a living.

He secured many pupils and put up at the Belmont Hotel. His terms were $2 in advance. Wednesday night was the date fixed for the beginning of the music class and the place was the Baptist church. The pupils were on hand, but the Professor was not, and an investigation showed that he had suddenly departed from the city, leaving behind an unpaid board bill. He had also managed to borrow $10 the day before from one of his pupils, and together besides having free board, he secured about $50.

Jersey Peach Growers Hopeful.

Lambertville, N. J., April 15.—Reports from different places in Hunterdon County are to the effect that the peach crop this year will be better than for many past seasons. George P. Wilson, of Delaware Township, one of the most extensive growers in South Jersey, and Asa Croncey, of Sergeantville, another large grower, say that, if the present bright prospects continue, they will be able to make up for the poor seasons lately encountered.

LOVELY STATEN ISLAND.

Its Citizens Bound to Effect Public Improvements That Will Make it a Delightful Resort.

In common with the other country districts which are to be taken into the Greater New York on January 1, the people of Staten Island are taking time by the forelock in the way of securing public improvements and conveniences which would not be thought of if it were not for the certainty of consolidation and a uniform purpose.

The Board of Supervisors is pushing forward the steps necessary for the issue of $100,000 of county road bonds required to complete this year the system begun five years ago; has under consideration the building of a $300,000 bridge across the Fresh Kills, at Lincolnville, and the creation of a $500,000 steel viaduct 50 feet above the Jersey street valley, at New Brighton, to provide a parallel thoroughfare to Richmond terrace. Application has been made to the Board by property owners to open a $150,000 boulevard 125 feet wide, extending eleven miles from Fort Wadsworth to Totenville, and there is before the Legislature a bill providing that Richmond County shall be bonded for $600,000 in order to secure property at Silver Lake and other places as sites for public parks.

In the village of New Brighton an application has been made to the village trustees to establish a separate lighting district in the Fifth and Sixth wards, which are thinly populated and have no street lights, and as the village has no money to establish a lighting district, a street lighting contract, has promised not to present a bill for the lights until after January 1, if the application be granted.

When the Board of Supervisors has established a lighting district in the town outside of the village of Port Richmond, and will illuminate the highways and byways of that farming territory with 800 electric incandescent lamps. A similar plan has been under consideration by the Southfield Town Board for some time, but has been blocked because of a fight between rival electric companies.

The trustees of Edgewater have under consideration the reviving of the plan to widen Bay street, the principal thoroughfare, which improvement the Legislature authorized some years ago, but which was abandoned because of the cost, and street widening schemes are projected in other parts of the island.

Excavation has become ambitious for public improvements, and the Board of Trade in that village is now at work planning to introduce a water system, and electric lights by the issue of bonds.

BOTH DARLINGTONS IN JAIL.

Goose Farmer Called to See His Wife, Who Held Up Constable Dippel.

Frederick Darlington, the goose farmer, of Lodi, N. J., who escaped from Constable Dippel on Wednesday while his wife held the officer at bay with a double-barrelled shotgun, called at the jail in Hackensack yesterday and asked to see his wife, who had been committed in default of bail on a charge of aiding in the escape of her husband.

Instead of granting him an interview with his wife, the Sheriff arrested Darlington. When arraigned before Judge Van Valen, Darlington said he would not deny the hold-up, but that he was not guilty of aiding in the escape of his wife. Judge Van Valen held him in $800 bail on the charge of maintaining a nuisance.

WORRY KILLS JUSTICE FORD.

Well Known Republican's Indictment for Embezzlement Ends in His Death.

Justice of the Peace Charles P. Ford, of New Brunswick, N. J., died there yesterday morning, a mental and physical wreck, the result of worry caused by his indictment on a charge of embezzlement, on which he was recently to have been tried. He was sixty-five years of age, and for many years had been a prominent Republican in New Brunswick.

Justice Ford was directed several months ago to make an accounting of the estate of Mrs. Julia A. Castner, a demented widow confined in the asylum at Trenton, his ward. He fought against making the accounting, but was finally forced to do it, and his figures showed a shortage of $1,700, which he could not explain.

Time was given him to make this deficit good, but when he failed to do it the Grand Jury indicted him. When the case was called for trial, on January 17, counsel for the accused obtained an adjournment until March 10. On that date a physician's certificate, stating that Justice Ford was insane, was produced, and the case was postponed indefinitely.

Justice Ford continually brooded over his trouble, grew morose and morose, and until this trouble came he was hale and hearty.

FOR THE NEATEST BACK YARD.

Plainfield's Public Spirited Women Offer Another Prize to Householders.

The Woman's Town Improvement Association of Plainfield, N. J., that gained considerable notoriety last year by conducting a contest for the best kept back yard skirting the tracks of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, has decided to offer a prize this year for the best kept back yard.

It has also undertaken to put the so-called City Park into a presentable condition and has organized the children into an auxiliary, to be known as the "Back Yard Beautifiers." The children are to be given a list of streets, trample on private lawns or injure other people's property in any way.

Stevens, Somerville; treasurer, John H. Sayers, Plainfield; the next meeting of the association will be held in Plainfield, May 14.

A fashionable wedding took place in Westfield Wednesday night, when Miss Annie Swaim Lambert was married to Franklin Gilby, both of Westfield, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. French. Rev. N. W. Caldwell performed the ceremony. Four little nephews of the bride and bridegroom acted as pages, while Lillian Lambert was flower girl.

Taylor-Smith Nuptials.

Miss Minnie Smith, of Plainfield, was bridesmaid, and A. D. Honeyman best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. O. McKelvey.

Frank's Damage Suit Compromised.

Allan J. Frank, the clothing dealer engaged in business on Park avenue, Plainfield, N. J., has compromised the $5,000 suit for damages for false imprisonment instituted against Louis Lesser, a Newark clothier, for $1,000, and stopped all proceedings. Lesser accused Frank of stealing a pair of trousers.

HIS COWBOY PRANK MAY CAUSE DEATH.

Eleven-Year-Old Alex Quelhorst Lassoes Richard Roeber in Hoboken.

A FOUR-YEAR-OLD VICTIM.

Boy Had Been Visiting a Show and Was Emulating the Riders' Prowess.

Juvenile precocity and the proverbial desire to imitate the lasso-throwing exhibitions that he had seen recently at Buffalo Bill's Wild West show have got eleven-year-old Alexander Quelhorst, of No. 312 Grand street, Hoboken, into a heap of trouble. He was yesterday held by Recorder McDonough to await the result of the injuries inflicted by him on Richard Roeber, four years old, of No. 200 Willow avenue.

When Buffalo Bill and his troops of cavorting steeds and real Indians, with their thrilling cries of the plains, and his swaggering cowboys, made famous in novels, closed last week in Hoboken, there was a charge among the youngsters of that town. Many had started active practice in the gentle art of throwing the lasso and the long rope, and each juvenile thought he was entitled to a medal for his skill. The boy prisoner was an enthusiastic ropeman. All that was lacking to make him an ideal cowboy, he thought, was the following steers, and in their stead he tried his skill on the goats. That palled upon him yesterday, and as more exciting pastime he chose little Roeber as a subject for the rope.

The little fellow was playing in front of his home when Quelhorst hove in sight. Gathering his clothes line lasso in graceful coils, he threw it over Roeber's head. The line dropped around the little fellow's feet, and with the regulation cowboy yell, Quelhorst pulled it taut, throwing the child off his feet.

Then he started madly off with his prey in tow. After dragging Roeber over a five-foot fence, Quelhorst became alarmed at the shrieks of the little fellow, and dropping his rope, fled to his home. When Roeber was picked up he was unconscious and was horribly cut about the legs where the rope had rested. He was hurriedly removed to his home, and a physician summoned. At the suggestion of the latter the police were notified.

Quelhorst, when arrested at his home, had lost all of his enthusiasm for lasso-throwing, and tearfully protested that he did not mean to hurt the little fellow. The victim was removed later to St. Mary's Hospital.

TIE-COUNTER M'ALLEN GONE.

Man Who Claimed to Have Walked from Omaha Is Missing.

John McAllen, who with his wife arrived in Newark on March 25, claiming to have walked all the way from Omaha, Neb., has gone on another pilgrimage. This time he is riding instead of walking and has left his wife behind. He tried to hire a horse and buggy from Mrs. M. Bailey Wednesday, leaving as security a watch which looked like gold. When he did not return Wednesday night, Mrs. Bailey examined the watch closely and found that it was gold plated.

Mrs. Bailey yesterday reported the matter to the police, who meantime had received a visit from Mrs. McAllen. The latter said her husband had left her with very little money telling her to meet him at the Erie Railroad Station. He failed to show up. Since his arrival in Newark McAllen had a good deal of work at his trade of paperhanging, but spent nearly all the money he made in drink.

Wickoff-Stiglitz Nuptials.

The marriage of Miss Minnie L. Stiglitz, daughter of John Stiglitz, of Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., to Frank C. Wickoff, took place yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Hannah Stiglitz, of Brooklyn, was bridesmaid, and John Stigler, of North Plainfield, best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

THE SMALLEST HOUSE IN NEWARK.

The smallest house in Newark was discovered in the recently annexed Clinton Hill district, when Secretary Gutter and ten employees of the Tax Board swooped down upon it. It is six feet long, four feet wide and five and one-half feet high, on Dutchman street. It is occupied by a man who owns the ground on which it stands.

ROBBED ROSE COGHLAN.

Actress's Testimony Convicts Kenny, Who Stole, and Donahue, Who Received, Her Diamond Brooch.

Rose Coghlan, the actress, appeared in the role of prosecuting witness in the Court of Quarter Sessions, Newark, yesterday, against Edward Kenny, Neil Donahue and Nell Campbell, charged with the theft of her diamond brooch while she was playing with the "Sporting Duchess" company in this city last February. The brooch was recovered in a pawnshop, and when produced in court, Miss Coghlan identified it and said she had paid $450 for it.

Miss Coghlan explained that she had worn the ornament on Thursday night, February 11, and on the following night had been unable to find it. "My maid," she continued, "took care of all my jewels. She placed them in a jewel bag when I was through using them, and that bag I always carried on my person. On Friday night she missed the pin. She asked me if I had put it away, and then it was that I discovered the loss."

The jury found Kenny guilty of stealing the brooch and Donahue guilty of receiving. Campbell was acquitted. Judge Fort sentenced Kenny to three years and Donahue to eighteen months imprisonment in State Prison. The three men were staged at the theatre where the "Sporting Duchess" was produced.

REPUBLICAN REPEATERS HELD.

John Oakes Fleads Guilty, and Makes Important Revelations.

John Oakes and Edward Martin, who attempted to vote illegally at the charter election in Newark Tuesday, pleaded guilty in the Fourth Precinct Police Court of that city, yesterday, and were committed in default of $1,000 bail each. John Moore, who was charged with the same offence, pleaded not guilty, and was held in the same amount.

Mayor Seymour, who had a long interview with Oakes Wednesday evening, declined to make it public, but it is known that the prisoner confessed that he had a Republican sign in his envelope when he attempted to vote. It is also said Oakes confessed that he had been induced to go from New York to Newark by a man recently employed by the Board of Works. Evidence implicating another Newark city official is also said to be in the hands of Mayor Seymour.

A TERROR AT SEVENTY-TWO.

Thomas Lynch, of Ridgewood, Arrested on a Charge of Burglary.

Thomas Lynch, seventy-two years old, "the terror of Ridgewood," is again in trouble and his latest escapade may return him to the State Prison. He left about seven months ago after serving a term for attempted murder.

Quelhorst appeared before the Grand Jury to testify on his charge against his son for atrocious assault and battery. After he had testified he was arrested on a charge of burglary made by George R. Young, of Ridgewood, who claims that Lynch entered his house early Wednesday morning and stole clothes valued at $30. Young says he saw Lynch in his bedroom, but didn't move for fear of being shot.

STICKLE AS A STICKER.

Stood in Telegraph Pole Hole Till a Policeman Chased the Laborers.

To his neighbors on Orange street, Newark, Charles Stickles is a good deal of a hero. He is the man who, single-handed, braved the power of the Newark Electric Light & Power Company and prevented it from planting one of its poles in front of his house.

On Wednesday afternoon the company sent its men to erect the pole in front of Stickles' house, No. 204 Orange street. Stickles, armed with a hose and a gun, stood in the doorway and refused to let them enter his house. He was advised to go elsewhere. He did so, and telephoned for a policeman. When he got back he found a hole dug in front of his house and into it he jumped. There he stuck, although the laborers shoveled dirt down his neck and made him uncomfortable. "Lemme see yer permit," the policeman said, when he arrived. When he had inspected it he exclaimed: "I have a great nerve. This is for the erection of a new pole in place of an old one. An' ye dug a new hole! Skip!" The pole raisers departed without a word.

POLITICAL HOPES BURIED.

Three Defeated Candidates Hire a Band and March to Funeral Home Through West Orange.

Crowds of people were attracted to the vicinity of Valley road, West Orange, N. J., late Wednesday afternoon, where the solemn notes of a funeral dirge were being played by a brass band. There was no hearse or funeral procession in the rear of the music, and bystanders gazed from windows in amazement, and inquires as to what it all meant were passed from one to another.

Tuesday was election day in that suburban village, and a lively fight for town clerk took place. There being four candidates in the field, it took all night to count the votes, and when Joseph McDonough was announced the winner, all the candidates joined hands in friendship once more. Ellis Brady and James Grant, two of the defeated aspirants, stayed about town all Wednesday, and at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon a slow march was engaged to escort the two men through the town. The horn-blowers fell in, and Brady and Grant—the latter has but one leg and walks with a crutch—locked arms and marched ahead, the musicians following. The German leader fell in for fun, too, knowing well that a feast was in store at the end of the march.

Down Valley road the procession wended its way with the defeated candidates for town clerk in the lead. When Coleman Hotel, the political headquarters, was reached, a hundred or more men lined the big porch, but the two beaten candidates proceeded on toward Orange Valley.
